SHORELINE INFERNO—Fire rapidly consumes a two-bedroom wood-frame house on Alabama Street in Shoreline Park Thursday afternoon as East Hancock Volunteer and Waveland Fire Department personnel attempt to control the blaze. Hancock County Fire Marshal Jay Marsh at the scene reported that the house owner, Charles A. Slaydon of Piquette, said he was jacking the house up when it slipped off a jack and an apparent electrical short in a bedroom started the blaze. The entire house burned in about 15 minutes. Marsh ruled the fire accidental, but noted an investigation of the blaze is continuing. Responding to the incident were East Hancock President William Field, Assistant Chief Bill Field, Fire Fighters Richard Trudell, Michelle and Christine Field; and Waveland Fire Fighters Barry Richardson and Dr. William Bradford. ## Hancock classroom additions ok'd by state finance committee

By BRENT MACEY
The Hancock County School Board Saturday heard a report from Superintendent Billy Sills that recommendations for a long range building project to add 16 additional classrooms to county schools has been approved by the Mississippi

Educational Finance Committee. The committee is expected to pay some $18 for each square foot of new classroom space pending their approval of blue prints for construction. Sills would not comment on how much money the school system expects from the committee.

He said blue prints for the project are being worked on by architect John Mykolyk and will be submitted to the committee at the end of this month. The money is expected to be allocated in two months if the plans are approved, he said.

Sills said the school board will advertise for construction bids in approximately two months.

He said money from the committee will be paid directly to the companies contracted for the job. He noted the money will not pass through school officials' hands.

A resolution requesting the Hancock County Board of Supervisors pass a millage tax to procure some $250,000 in additional money needed for the building project was recently adopted by the school board.

Board members said that resolution will be presented to the supervisors for approval at the supervisors' next meeting, June 2.

Board members had hoped the new rooms could be built this summer, but problems with presenting the correct

Bay, Waveland, Hancock ousted from regional wastewater group

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.
Hancock County, Bay St. Louis and Waveland representatives on the Mississippi Gulf Coast Regional Wastewater Authority will be removed from their positions by Gov. William Winter.

Jean Longo, Waveland's representative and wife of Mayor John Longo, told that city's Board of Aldermen at meeting Wednesday night she and several others would be removed from the authority's board.

The county and two cities refused to join the regional authority.

Waveland is the only municipality on the Mississippi Gulf Coast establishing its own wastewater authority through the State Legislature which Bay St. Louis and Hancock may yet join.

Pass Christian, Moss Point, Pascagoula, Ocean Springs and Jackson County are the only Gulf Coast municipalities joining the coastwide authority.

Biloxi was the last city deciding to join the authority and in an election Tuesday voted not to participate in the regional program.

Jean Longo said Bob Stevens, authority board chairman representing Jackson County, sent a letter to Winter requesting representatives Perry Gibson of Hancock, William Hilliker of Bay St. Louis, Longo, Curtis Farley of Harrison County, Charles Getman of Long Beach, former chairman Stanford Morse Jr. of Gulfport and Gerald Hopkins of Biloxi be removed.

She expected they would be officially removed Saturday.

The only members remaining on the authority are Gov. Howard W. Callahan, Christian, Harold Castle of Ocean Springs, Stephens, William Withen of Pascagoula and Jerry Whitt of Moss Point.

Longo told the alderman she had just returned from a 6 p.m. regional authority meeting in Biloxi and reported, "They're in the process of reorganizing. I've never been fired from anything before, but I am now."

John Longo humorously stated, "Well if its going to be a Jackson County Regional Authority it ought to be one. What we need is Pass Christian to join the Hancock authority."

"All the rate figures quoted by the regional authority are now automatically escalated by seven-twelfths," he said.

Referring to a newspaper article reporting Biloxi's decision not to join, Longo stated, "This is what turned the tables..."

The mayor cited the regional authority's 99-year membership requirement as "ridiculous." Waveland would have only received some two percent ($2 million) of a $120 million program, high pressure tactics by regional officials and inequity in the board's membership.

"I think the state will be going back to an alternate plan where individual municipalities will have the responsibility to meet Environmental Protection Agency Clean Water Act standards," Longo explained.

Barbara Rappold, alderman and city clerk, stated a countywide authority would be more responsible to meeting the guidelines.

Longo added, "I think affirmative action will be shown in our plan for Hancock County."

Alderman Jack Toomey said, "I think EPA and Farmer's Home Administration is on shaky ground with President Ronald Reagan anyway."

Jean Longo thanked the aldermen for the opportunity to serve on the regional authority and her husband replied, "We appreciate the help and you did a fine job."

Fishermen arrested for illegal shrimping

By ELLIS CUEVAS
Two fishermen were arrested Saturday morning for allegedly shrimping in closed waters according to Bureau of Marine Resources Officer Carl Fernandez.

Charged with shrimping in closed waters are Harold John Strong, 113 North Street, Waveland; and Carrol F. Mayne, Rt. 2, Box 532, Bay St. Louis. Strong was also charged with resisting arrest. Both are scheduled to appear before Justice Court Judge Lee Klein for a preliminary hearing.

Fernandez said, "The two were shrimping in the St. Joe Pass about one quarter mile inside Mississippi waters. We had warned the two fishermen the day before they were shrimping in closed waters."

The Marine Resources officers making the arrests were Fernandez and Fred Williams, with assistance from Cliff Roberts and Hancock Deputies Ronald Cuevas and Harold Heine.

With the approach of summer and increased boating Fernandez reports his department is enforcing the boat and water safety regulations and laws.

The Bureau of Marine Resources were called about noon on Saturday to investigate a report of a body allegedly floating in the bay near the Yacht Club.

A passing boater reported seeing the body and called Bay Police.

In addition to the Bureau of Marine Resources officers, Bay Policemen Chris Sand and Robert Williams were involved in the search.

Hancock Deputy Harold Heine flew his plane over the bay after a boat and shore search revealed nothing.

No body was reportedly seen from the air search.

Fernandez said the one possibility was that someone could have drowned recently and floated for a few minutes before going down completely.

Authorities had no reports of anyone missing.

Offshore drilling rules recommended

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.
The Mississippi Commission on Wildlife Conservation Friday morning recommended a list of proposed offshore mineral leasing regulations be considered by the State Department of Natural Resources.

Dr. Richard L. Leard, Bureau of Marine Resources director, presented the proposed regulations to the commission at a 9 a.m. meeting at Harrison County's Biloxi Courthouse.

Several months ago the department requested BMR to formulate regulations after two yet unnamed oil and gas brokers requested mineral leases in waters offshore from Hancock County.

However, if all the regulations are adopted by the department, no drilling or seismic operations will be allowed closer than one mile from the bases of oyster and seagrass beds, state leased waterbottoms for oyster cultivation, beaches or offshore islands.

The proposed regulations also prohibit exploration and drilling on oyster reefs, submerged grass beds, fishing banks and other environmentally sensitive areas.

Disposal of toxic or noxious materials and untreated human wastes from drilling operations are prohibited unless a permit is issued by the state. The proposed regulations specifically require state permits for dumping hydrocarbons in waters.

Regulations for wetland drilling operations (in marsh areas), prohibit borrow pits and use of herbicides, limit channel dredging, encourage use of production platforms and require buried pipelines.

If the regulations are adopted all drilling structures must be removed and the area restored to its original condition when operations are completed. However, structures may remain if permitted by the State Department of Wildlife Conservation.

Dr. Edmund Keiser, a commission member, questioned if the proposed regulations adequately protect natural drainage flows in wetland areas.

Leard replied, "The intent of the regulations requires these drilling operations not to change drainage patterns appreciably."

Keiser noted, "When you're talking of flow patterns you're talking about something important to a marsh area. If this is your intent you haven't done it."

However, Keiser said the BMR formulated regulations were excellent and the commission approved them.

Nutrition program expanded to Hancock

The WIC (Women, Infants and Children) supplemental food program has been expanded to Hancock County. Screening for participants is held every Monday, Wednesday and Friday at the Health Department on Dunbar Avenue in Bay St. Louis.

Appointments can be arranged by calling the department, 467-4510.

WIC is a program designed to meet the special food needs of low-income mothers and babies, and is designed to operate as an adjunct to good health care.

The program provides specified nutritious supplemental foods and nutrition education or pregnant or breastfeeding women, their babies and children to the age of five who are determined by a competent professional authority to be nutritional risk because of inadequate nutrition and inadequate income.

Infants and children are eligible if they show signs of poor growth, anemia, obesity, chronic illness or nutrition-related diseases.

Pregnant and postpartum women are considered at risk if they are younger than 18 or older than 35, have a poor obstetrical history of previous low-birth weight infants, miscarriages, short periods between conception, gestational diabetes, anemia or poor weight gain.

For more information on eligibility contact Hancock County Health Department at 467-4510.

Shrimp, however cooked and served, are among my favorites of the table, and when combined with tomatoes and rice into that special favorite, "Shrimp Creole" well, that's a meal for the most discriminating palate.

There are many versions of Shrimp Creole; and one I like especially well is Vera Sente's recipe. Here's:

SHRIMP CREOLE
SENTILLE
2 cups peeled, deveined medium shrimp (as desired) or more

1 cup each of bite-sized green bell pepper and celery
1 4-oz. can whole or sliced mushrooms

1 16 oz. can whole tomatoes (cut into bite-sized pieces)
1 bay leaf

1 tbsp. minced parsley
1 large finely chopped onion
5 or 6 lemon slivers

Salt and pepper to taste
1/2 cup corn oil and one-third cup plain flour

In a heavy deep pot, make your roux from the oil and flour, over low fire, stirring, until it turns peanut colored, then add the chopped onion.

Simmer until it glistens, while you keep stirring.

Add all ingredients except the parsley and mushrooms. If too thick, add mushroom liquid. Simmer for about twenty minutes over low heat.

Add parsley and mushrooms and remove from heat. Serve over hot, fluffy white rice. (Serves four to six.)

Be sure to serve your shrimp Creole with hot French bread. Delicious.

Many cooks — and others — think of cornbread as the strictly Southern cookery of our own United States...but, in fact, cornbread is a part of other regional cookery also.

Several years ago, on one of our sojourns in Mexico, I enjoyed a delightful dish of corn meal, mixed with corn kernels, cheese, ground beef, hot peppers and such, and of course, asked for the recipe, and cooked this dish many a time at home on the bayou.

Then, somehow I lost the recipe, and had to start experimenting to reach that particular blend of ingredients and flavors we had liked so well. This is as near as I came to the delightful dish we enjoyed in old Mexico.

It's a filling dish, almost a meal in itself, served with a green salad and a light dessert such as sherbet or fresh fruit.

It's also a budget helper, though even ground beef, that long-time budget-beater, is "sky high" these days. At any rate, here's:

MEXICAN CORN BREAD

Batter:
1 cup corn meal
1 teaspoon salt, dash of cayenne

1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 cup milk
2 eggs
1 can cream style corn

Filling:
1 lb. ground beef
1 onion, minced
2 Jalapeno or other hot peppers, chopped fine

1 lb. Cheddar cheese, preferably sharp, grated
Brown the ground meat in a small amount of oil, along with the minced onion, and set aside.

Mix the batter, and pour half into a large, heavy skillet (greased well). Add the beef-onion mixture, top with the peppers and cheese. Pour remaining batter over all, and bake for half hour.

Then, on a hot, sunny day, in waves before removing from the skillet.

P.S. I sometimes cut this into very small squares or slices and serve at cocktail parties.

Holiday tragedies are unnecessary!

The appalling number of holiday tragedies occurring on the highways and waterways of this country is an unnecessary statistic about which we have become much too complacent.

Officials are predicting up to 550 deaths on the highways of the United States this weekend, while at the same time citing precise causes of those deaths and remaining helpless to prevent them.

Excessive speed and alcohol are the primary causes of highway deaths.

And carelessness is almost always a factor in accidental drownings.

Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Peterson has issued an urgent appeal to residents and visitors here — where we are virtually surrounded by water and activity in and on the water is the number one form of recreation — to exercise care and common sense around water and boats.

Peterson is justifiably proud of the fact there was not one single drowning in Hancock County last year.

The sheriff is urging swimmers to observe all warning signs around known holes, piers and bridges.

He makes particular note of the state law prohibiting the jumping or diving off bridges.

If we exercise reasonable care, Peterson is confident we can maintain that perfect record of last year.

And the Mississippi Safety Council and State Highway Patrol also feel a significant reduction in highway death can be achieved through observance of the 55 mph speed limit, through use of seat belts, and exercise of good judgment in connection with drinking and driving.

Waveland and Bay St. Louis police want extra caution is necessary today and Monday on US-90 and along congested Beach Boulevard.

Let's keep Memorial Day a holiday instead of a horrid day.

Citizen commends, contributes to development of District Four Park

May 14, 1981
Hon. Sam Perniciaro
Supervisor District Four
Rt. 2, Box 116-B
Bay St. Louis, MS 39520

Dear Sam:

I wish to add my compliment to the article from the Echo dated 5-14-81 as follows:

"While on the subject of sports, we would like to compliment Supervisor Sam Perniciaro on the fine ball facilities at the Beat Four Ball Park."

"The two ball fields, concession stands and other facilities will get a lot of use for years to come."

"We hope everyone using the facilities will respect them and use them for the purposes they have been built."

"We wish everyone will take time to drive by the fine ball park on Highway 43 near Highway 603 to see how nice the place has been designed."

"There are many folks who have worked on this park and they should also be commended. We know area businessmen have donated materials and some of the prizes, all thinking about one thing, the youth of today."

"It is good to think and plan for our youth, because they will be the leaders of tomorrow."

As a life-long volunteer, working with youth of our County, in particular Boy Scouts of America, I am pleased to note your interest as well as the full Board of Supervisors in general throughout our County.

In order to do my share, I am glad to enclose a small contribution to pass on to the program in need at this time. Again thanking you all.

Sincerely,
NORTON HAAS

Our beauty critic Randy Ponder did a pretty good job in selecting the Miss USA finalists. Randy picked four beauties he thought would be in the running and those four were among the 12 finalists.

Three of his selections were in the top five, with the winning Miss Ohio one of those three.

The State of Mississippi again received some very good nationwide publicity with the event being held on the Coast.

There was again this year a lot of work on behalf of our citizenry and we wish to express a thanks to everyone for a job well done.

In Hancock County there are sign problems. We have been told the same problem exists in other areas.

Authorities place a sign for speed limits, curves, yield and stops at intersections and for many other important reasons.

What happens then is someone will come along and remove, deface or destroy the important message, and all the effort and expense of having the sign installed is lost.

People have been injured and even some killed because someone has removed a stop sign or other road indicators.

We are glad to see the City of Waveland pass an ordinance carrying a stiff fine for tampering with signs.

We hope all citizens will notify the authorities whenever they see someone tampering with a sign.

The city limits sign between Waveland and Bay St. Louis, placed by the authorities for good reason, has been removed by some idiot with nothing else to do.

The city limits signs were placed following requests from many citizens and visitors, and are important for many reasons.

This coming week we celebrate Memorial Day. Waveland's Bourgeois-Stieffel-Ray American Legion Post No. 77 will have its annual celebration Monday starting at 11 a.m.

We hope all interested parties will attend these special services at the post home on Coleman Avenue.

In Bay St. Louis, Clement R. Bontemps American Legion Post No. 139 will hold its annual Memorial Services Saturday, May 30 at 10 a.m.

The services will be conducted at the grave site of Clement R. Bontemps, St. Mary's Cemetery, Necaise Avenue.

Let us all remember our dead this week by showing our respect and attending memorial services.

The City of Bay St. Louis has instituted a trash collection system within the past few months.

The area North of US-90 is collected on the first Wednesday of each month from US-90 to Washington, not including Washington on second Wednesday; and from Washington to southern limits on third Wednesday.

The pickup does not include the collection of building materials or lot clearing debris.

The reason we mention this is because we received a call from a resident of the 300 block of State Street this week complaining about trash being dumped in their street from the residents of Main Street with lots on both streets.

State Street, as all of you know, is probably the most narrow street in the city and we can see why the residents complain. We think the people who live on Main Street need consider the collection day of the second Wednesday and place the trash out a day or so before the pickup rather than just any time.

It could get to be annoying to have someone place their trash in the front of one's home, especially on a street as narrow as State Street.

SPECIAL REPORT:

President's Challenge

IMMIGRATION ACT

One of the most complex issues facing Congress and the new administration is the increasing number of illegal aliens and refugees coming into the United States.

Reform of our outdated immigration laws, and a restriction on the numbers of aliens and refugees allowed into our country must have a high priority in the 97th Congress.

I have joined with Senator Walter D. Huddleston of Kentucky and a number of other Senators in introducing S. 776, the Immigration and National Security Act of 1981. This act would give us the needed statutory authority to deal with these immigration problems.

One of the specific problems it is designed to address is the uncontrolled migration of so-called refugees such as last year's massive influx of people from Cuba and Haiti.

In just a few short months, over 125,000 of these unfortunate people arrived, in such sudden and large numbers that our resources were strained to the point that President Carter was forced to declare the situation a national emergency.

By the end of the current fiscal year, we will have spent about $800 million in federal funds to deal with this problem. And this is not the final cost, I am sorry to say. Cuban dictator Fidel Castro has recently raised the possibility he may try to use this type of "population politics" again.

The Senate Intelligence Committee recently heard testimony from government experts who estimated that "if unrestricted immigration were allowed from Cuba, as many as two million Cubans would come to the United States." This is almost the size of the entire population of Mississippi.

The Senate Immigration Subcommittee has begun hearings on proposals to improve our immigration laws and the effectiveness of their administration.

I have urged Senator Alan Simpson, chairman of the Senate panel, to use my bill as a vehicle for these needed changes.

The bill would tighten up eligibility quotas for immigrants, restrict the allowable limits on refugees, and significantly strengthen our Border Patrol to help stem the flow of illegal aliens across our borders.

Last year, over 800,000 legal immigrants were allowed into our country, and at least that many illegal aliens came into the United States. Conditions have changed since the early days of the Republic when free immigration was possible, even advantageous in many ways. Now our cities are crowded, welfare rolls are longer, government benefits expensive, labor laws more demanding. Yet in 1980—last year—we took in more immigrants, legal and illegal, than in any year in our history.

I am pleased that the Reagan administration is now considering recommendation of a guest worker program to cope with the large numbers of persons from Mexico who provide farm labor and work in other occupations, primarily in the Southwestern and Far West regions of our country. A more workable and enforceable law is desperately needed.

Resolving some of our problems with Mexico in regard to alien workers and coastal waters would also go a long way toward cementing firmer ties with this important Western Hemisphere neighbor.

It is my hope that this important reform effort is approved by Congress in the near future.

Washington Report

By Congressman Trent Lott

5th District, Mississippi

TAXPAYERS HAVE RIGHTS, TOO

Legislation is being prepared to help protect the rights of U.S. taxpayers from our country's sometimes overzealous tax collection agency, the Internal Revenue Service.

It's unfortunate in a way that Congress has to act to make sure the IRS realizes that taxpayers have rights, too. The agency itself should be responsive to such rights, just as U.S. law affords accused criminals every right to defend themselves.

Sometimes, of course, it's good for Congress to point the executive branch and its regulatory agencies in the right direction. That's what these two pieces of legislation propose to do.

One, authored by Congressman Don Young of Alaska, seeks to prohibit the IRS from seizing property without a court order. I have joined in co-sponsoring this bill because I see a clear need for it.

Congressman Young points out that evidence given to House and Senate oversight committees confirmed the use of seizure quotas and the failure of the IRS to sue available collection alternatives before property was taken from an individual. Current law allows such seizures without a court hearing.

The intent of the proposal is to allow a court to determine when a seizure of property is necessary and, hopefully, to avoid mistaken and excessive seizures.

The second bill I have co-sponsored was offered by Congressman Jim Collins of Texas. It, too, is designed to protect taxpayers from practices many consider to be unfair.

For example, under terms of the bill if a taxpayer prevailed in an action brought against him by the IRS, the IRS would be required to reimburse his expenses. This would prevent the situation that occurs too often today: A taxpayer may be frightened into paying an assessment because he knows even if he wins, his attorney's fees will cost more than he can afford.

Congressman Collins also proposes to make sure IRS employees are not required to make "quotas" that provide incentive for them to collect any certain amount from audited taxpayers. He proposes that the IRS, not the individual taxpayer, would assume the burden of proving wrongdoing. His bill also includes a provision on seizure similar to the Young bill.

In addition, Congressman Collins proposes to give taxpayers the right to record meetings between themselves and the IRS; further, the meetings would have to be scheduled at a time and place convenient to the taxpayer.

Both of these measures carry strong statements of the rights of the American taxpayers when they are dealing with one federal agency which can be tough on individuals. I'll be working with the authors toward congressional approval.

CONSUMER REPORT

Office of Bill Allain, Attorney General

MAGAZINE SALES DOOR-TO-DOOR

Attorney General Bill Allain warns consumers to be careful when investing their money with unfamiliar magazine salesman that appear at the door.

Sometimes these salespeople tell you that they are working their way through college, trying to win a scholarship, or competing for a trip to Europe.

Allain states that you shouldn't be taken in by any such sales pitch, for such pitches may not have any basis in truth.

Instead, before you say "yes" to signing a contract for magazines, make certain that you have protected yourself against making an agreement you might later regret.

Here are some ways of doing this:

1. When a salesperson appears at your home, before letting them in, be sure you find out what they are selling.
2. If you are not interested in buying a magazine, don't let them in.
3. Don't be taken in by such inducements as I am taking a neighborhood survey; this magazine subscription is free, or all you have to pay for is the postage and handling.

Importance of the sea increases in international politics

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article on "THE GEOPOLITICAL IMPORTANCE OF THE SEA" by Wayne Schroeder, editor of The Heritage Foundation's National Security Record is furnished to The Sea Coast Echo by Public Research, Syndicated of Claremont, Calif.

Throughout the course of history, control of the seas has played an important role in determining both the outcome of military conflicts and the conduct of international relations.

Seven-tenths of the world's surface is covered by water and some 90 percent of all international commerce today is transported over the oceans.

For the Western world, it is imperative that the sea routes and ocean passageways which these cargoes must traverse be kept open.

For the U.S. and Western Europe, oil tankers transit from the Straits of Hormuz, go around the Cape of Good Hope below South Africa, and then pass on to their final destinations, either to the Caribbean or up to the North Atlantic and into the Baltic and North Seas.

For Japan, the great industrial and commercial power of the western Pacific, its maritime commerce must pass through the Straits of Malacca, through the South China Sea and up to the Sea of Japan.

Should these critical sea lines of communication ever be severed in time of conflict, the West would find its industrial base severely impaired.

The domination of critical sea laws is accomplished by the control of land areas which guard these sea routes and ocean passageways. These areas are known as "choke points."

Each of these critical "choke points" has a special significance in the realm of international commerce and geopolitics.

The Straits of Hormuz serve as the oil artery of the West, from which the oil of the Persian Gulf must transit to the industrialized nations of the Western world.

The Dardanelles and Bosphorus is the main route from the Black Sea to the Mediterranean.

The Caribbean serves as the loading point for Western oil tankers to the U.S., as giant supertankers offload their oil at ports in the Bahamas, Trinidad and the Virgin Islands for re-shipment to U.S. refineries and ports on the eastern seaboard and the Gulf of Mexico.

The Greenland-Iceland-United Kingdom gap serves as a primary Soviet strategic missile-carrying submarine exit.

The Baltic Sea and its approaches, are important staging areas for both Soviet and NATO naval operations in the North Atlantic.

The South China Sea, which is currently being exposed to an increased Soviet naval presence, is the route through which commerce must pass to Japan.

Control of entire seas and ocean passageways is also facilitated by the development of a basing infrastructure on the coasts of nations adjacent to these seas and oceans.

One need only witness the U.S.-Soviet competition over obtaining access to naval and air basing facilities in the Indian Ocean and Persian Gulf to underscore this point.

In the past 15 years the geopolitics of this area has radically changed, in large measure due to the Soviet ability to obtain naval basing or anchorage rights at crucial locations in the region.

The USSR now has such rights at Aden in South Yemen, at the entrance to the Gulf of Aden and the Red Sea in Ethiopia at Massawa, just above the Gulf of Aden and Djibouti; in Mozambique, guarding the Mozambique-Madagascar channel; in Angola, north of the Cape of Good Hope route; and also in Libya and Syria in the Mediterranean.

Moreover, its occupation of Afghanistan places it only 400 miles from the Straits of Hormuz.

This shift in the geopolitical balance precipitated the U.S. negotiation of basing access agreements with the governments of Oman, Kenya, and Somalia this past year.

The major naval and air facilities to be available to the U.S. in these regions will include Masirah in Oman, Mombassa in Kenya and Mogadishu, and the Soviet built facility at Berbera in Somalia.

Islands are also of critical geopolitical importance in the determination of geopolitical control of the seas and ocean passageways.

The U.S. maintains its naval headquarters for the Pacific fleet at Pearl Harbor in Hawaii and has B-52 bombers stationed in Guam.

The U.S. also uses the base at Yokosuka in Japan and depends upon the use of Subic Bay in the Philippine Islands for basing and logistics purposes in the Indian Ocean and the western Pacific.

The U.S. is currently upgrading its naval and communications facilities at Diego Garcia in the Indian Ocean, and some Pentagon planners favor widening its runways to give it a 5-12 landing capability.

The Australian government has offered its naval base at Cockburn Sound for use by the U.S. But thus far the U.S. has not responded to the offer.

In the Atlantic, the Azores Islands were of critical geopolitical importance during the 1973 October War. The U.S. used the Azores to refuel its C-54 aircraft resupplying Israel during the war.

Western control of the Azores is absolutely essential, for should these islands ever fall into pro-Soviet hands, which might very well have happened had Portugal gone Communist in 1973, similar shifts to the Middle East would be impossible.

Western surveillance of Soviet submarines in the Atlantic would also have been curtailed.

The ocean floor is also of considerable geopolitical importance because of its oil and mineral wealth and strategic value.

Certain offshore areas are rich in potential oil finds. The North Sea has become a very valuable oil source for the British.

Both the USSR and the People's Republic of China are attempting to develop their offshore oil potential (off Sakhalin Island and in Po Hai Bay) through the acquisition of Western offshore oil drilling technology.

And of course, offshore oil production is extensive in the Persian Gulf, Venezuela and off Texas and Louisiana in the Gulf of Mexico.

Most students of geopolitics would readily acknowledge the existence of offshore oil as one of the most important geographical attributes of the seas; and certainly one which has geopolitical ramifications.

However, the ocean floor also has economically valuable minerals such as manganese nodules (composed of manganese, copper, cobalt, and nickel), phosphorites, tin, and magnesium.

While active strategic uses of the seabed and ocean floor are regulated under a 1970 treaty, the seabed is used for passive defense purposes.

The U.S. has emplaced sonar listening devices and hydrophones on the seabeds off its coasts.

This is used for submarine detection purposes. Because of this important military use of the ocean floor, the U.S. has opposed the complete demilitarization of the seabed.

The U.S. also uses the seabed to conduct naval research and to test non-nuclear weapons.

The seas are therefore important not just to the geographer, but also to the naval strategist, the economist, the marine biologist, the policy analyst, and the business executive.

What happens on or near the seas will have the utmost importance for international politics during the next 20 years.

For these reasons, it is advisable that both the scholar and the layman increase their knowledge of the political, economic and strategic importance of the sea.

HERITAGE NEWS FORUM

BUCKS BRING OUT BUREAUCRATIC BROTHERHOOD

FROM THE HERITAGE FOUNDATION • WASHINGTON, D.C.

By EDWIN FEULNER

It's amazing how the prospect of cash bonuses promotes office camaraderie and loyalty among senior federal bureaucrats. (The less charitable among us might call it cronyism, old-boyism, or palsy-walsyism.)

A centerpiece of former President Carter's much-publicized crusade for civil service reform was the creation of an elite Senior Executive Service (a corps drawn from three "supergrades" of the career civil service, and two non-career, sub-cabinet political ranks).

SES managers give up certain "civil service" benefits, but are eligible for substantial bonuses to supplement their $50,000-plus salaries, as a reward for "superior" performance.

Twenty percent of an agency's SES executives are eligible for bonuses of up to 20 percent of their salary.

And another six percent of the career

SES executives (let's not get too generous with the outsiders) may be knighted as "Meritorious Executives" or "Presidential Executives" and given cash awards of $10,000-$20,000 (sort of like becoming a "Double-Diamond" or "Triple-Diamond" distributor for Amway).

The paperwork basis on which all SES awards are dispensed is a system of "performance appraisals."

Each agency works up its own criteria for bonus awards (with a cursory check by the Office of Personnel Management to assure compliance with the 1978 Civil Service Reform Act), and an agency's senior executives, in effect, determine the size of the bonuses they pass around to one another.

No sales figures, no profit or loss statements embarrassing anyone.

In a column in January 1980, I made the observation that these awards were being passed around rather liberally, though I refrained from making jokes about showing up on time, keeping pencils sharp, and other qualities that go into making a good bureaucrat stand out among his peers.

The cash awards aren't particularly funny, though, and have run into a highly unlikely source of criticism: federal workers.

In a recently released survey of about 1,000 members of SES, 50 percent of the respondents said they thought a disproportionate share of the bonuses go to the very top agency executives at the expense of more deserving subordinates.

Forty-five percent reported one or more instances in the last year when they believed, bonuses were given to "management favorites" without sufficient basis in actual performance.

Although some of this can be dismissed as sour grapes or routine water-cooler grumbling, the extent of the discontent indicates that the system has not produced the results anticipated by Jimmy Carter behaviorists.

If the lure of bonuses promotes performance excellence among top government management, then its cost to the taxpayer — an estimated $14 million annually — would be money well spent.

But when awards are given under a mutual back-scratching arrangement, the dangers of political and personal abuse are enormous.

In May 1980 the Virginia Electric and Power Company announced a carrot-and-stick program of its own: it cut the salaries of its top 150 executives between eight and 10 percent as an incentive for them to make the utility more efficient; they are to get back the pay cuts plus a bonus this year if they have managed to improve the company's earnings.

But of course, that approach would never work in a government agency. They don't have any profit margins, remember?

(Feulner is president of The Heritage Foundation, a Washington-based public policy research institute.)

Kidney group quashes rumors

Over the past few months the National Kidney Foundation of Mississippi has received numerous inquiries from all over the state from individuals and groups willing to collect pop tops, cigarette packages, and universal product code squares.

At one time, collecting these things helped pay for time on an artificial kidney machine, the machine that removes impurities in the blood when the kidneys fail to work.

Currently, however, Mississippi patients have no need for such collections, since in most cases Medicare, private insurance, and financial assistance programs cover the basic costs of treatment.

Stopping the rumors that collected items pay for time on an artificial kidney machine is a difficult task.

The Foundation depends largely on the public to keep it informed when these rumors crop up. It can then act through the media and lay the rumors to rest.

But the Foundation is never able, it seems, to trace these rumors back to their sources.

The National Kidney Foundation of Mississippi advises groups and individuals to confirm any rumor with the organization that supposedly wants an item before taking part in a collection effort.

Commission ok's Borg-Warner 'cooling water' discharge

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.
Borg-Warner Chemical Corp. received approval Friday from the Mississippi Commission on Wildlife Conservation to discharge 'cooling water' from its Port Bienville Industrial Park plant now under construction.

Joe Gill, Bureau of Marine Resources Wetlands Division chief, told commission members at a 9 a.m. meeting in Harrison County's Biloxi Courthouse that Borg-Warner was issued a 'construction permit' in 1979 from the Mississippi Marine Resources Council (the predecessor of BMR).

"But the council put in a stipulation that Borg-Warner would have to get another discharge permit," Gill reported.

He explained a 'bayou essay' was originally required which would evaluate the effects plant wastes would produce in surrounding wetlands.

The division chief said Borg-Warner changed its production process which now apparently eliminates chemical waste discharge.

"Borg-Warner has changed methods of discharge. Only a noncontact cooling water will be discharged," Gill said.

"We expect a permit to be issued to Borg-Warner in July and BMR recommends the permit be issued. A bayou essay is not necessary," he reported.

Dr. Edmund Keiser, a commission member, asked Gill, "No chemicals at all will be added to the water discharged?"

Gill replied, "This is water containing no other type of discharge which will be circulated in coolings towers then cooled down."

The division chief said 14 gallons of the water per minute would be pumped into Port Bienville canals at a temperature no more than two degrees higher than the water in the channels.

The board unanimously approved lifting the essay requirement.

Academic market helps Mississippi

Research at the Gulf Coast Research Laboratory currently being conducted by a University of Southern Mississippi graduate student, who came to Mississippi to study through the Academic Common Market, could have a profound effect on the state's seafood industry.

John Supan's research involves taking contaminated oysters, which are not acceptable for market, placing them in plastic coops and transporting them to clean water where they cleanse themselves. The process will allow oyster producers to relocate and market oysters which otherwise could not have been harvested.

Supan came to the research lab through the Academic Common Market, after graduation from Wheeling College in Virginia.

The Common Market is based on the premise that if a student can not find a specific academic program in any of his home state's educational institutions, he can, through the Common Market, attend an institution which does offer the field of study and is located in another state.

The University of Southern Mississippi is a member of the "market" through which states and institutions share specialized academic programs. The program now includes nearly 450 offerings at the undergraduate and graduate levels. Other state institutions participating in the Common Market program are the University of Mississippi and Mississippi State University.

According to Dr. Tom Meredith, academic programs officer for the State College Board and state coordinator for the Common Market, the program gives the state an opportunity to avoid needless and costly duplication of facilities and the staff and faculty to operate them.

"One of the program's highlights is that students can pursue their studies in another state at in-state tuition rates," Meredith said.

"There were no graduate programs in marine biology in West Virginia when I graduated," Supan said. "I had to consider expenses and through a guidance counselor, I heard about the Common Market. USM was one of the institutions offering graduate work in the field and was a member of the Common Market. I was accepted into the USM program and proved that to the West Virginia Board of Regents. Then my out-of-state tuition was waived and that was very helpful."

The program has been beneficial to Supan and as a result Mississippi is gaining valuable information about oyster harvesting along the Gulf Coast.

Pollution causes growing concern

It is time Mississippi gave very careful consideration to future development that will affect Mississippi Sound, and reevaluated how permissive we can afford to be toward dumping waste into coastal waters, Gulf Coast Research Laboratory chemists Drs. Julia and Thomas Lytle, said recently.

The Lytles are completing the second year of an investigation of pollutant transport in Mississippi Sound. Findings have caused them to express concern about the future of state waters.

There has been a traditional willingness on the part of state and local government to accept and promote any and all growth. The Lytles believe that attitude ought to be questioned in light of the possible consequences of municipal and industrial expansion in the coming years.

Until recently, there has been little data or information available on pollution in the coastal waters of Mississippi. The current study is designed to provide scientific data to supplement economic data and serve as a basis for making decisions concerning the amounts and types of pollutants that may safely be dumped into the Sound and adjacent bays.

"We are, particularly, concerned about the effect of the inevitable pollution on the Mississippi Sound that would accompany continued growth, especially because of the important role of the Sound as a valuable fishery nursery," stated Julia Lytle, an environmental chemist.

The Lytles are co-principal investigators of the project. They are about to begin the third year of research. The project is being supported by a federal Sea Grant in the amount of $63,348, administered by the Mississippi-Alabama Sea Grant Consortium; matched by $18,200 from the state, and another $13,465 from the Laboratory.

During the past year, work has proceeded simultaneously on two separate phases of the pollution study. Because of delays in receiving drill cores as scheduled from Pascagoula River and the Sound, the Lytles were able to conduct a broad sampling program, not in the original plans, to collect surface sediments from locations throughout the eastern Sound. Those sediments were analyzed for a broad range of organic compounds.

During 1980, Lab workers analyzed 15 drill cores which were received in November 1979; more recently, they have been analyzing materials from four additional cores that were received in November 1980, Thomas Lytle said.

The Lytles also instituted toxicity studies last year to determine the potential threat to marine organisms from polluted sediments.

"We have made some interesting observations. For example, some sites in the Sound have sediments with high concentrations of industrial waste, but they are not terribly toxic. Other sediments with smaller concentrations of pollutants are much more toxic to marine and estuarine organisms," Julie Lytle said. Laboratory personnel assigned to the GCRL toxicology program have conducted the bioassays to determine the toxicities of pollutants in the sediments sampled.

Work was not extended to the western portion of Mississippi Sound during 1980 as anticipated due to the delay in receiving core materials; however, that enabled the Lytles to concentrate on more detailed studies in the eastern Sound.

The investigation has already determined types of pollutants and levels of pollution in selected areas of the Sound, identified areas where pollutants accumulate, traced the movement of pollutants in the Sound through the use of "tracer" compounds and produced vertical and horizontal pollution profiles useful in assessing probable damage from dredging operations.

Keesler Medical Center adopts new scheduling

Keesler Medical Center has begun an expanded central appointments service this month.

Clinics affected by the change include oncology, hematology, hypertension, pulmonary, renal, gastroenterology, neurology, dermatology, pseudofolliculitis barbae, cardiology and internal medicine.

The central desk will continue scheduling appointments for primary care, acute care, diet and the outpatient clinics.

To schedule an appointment at any of these clinics, call 577-6800. Central appointments schedule patients from 7:30 a.m. until 4:15 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Also scheduled to begin May 11 is the checking of patients through the Defense Enrollment Eligibility Reporting System, DEERS.

The system is a DOD-wide program to enroll all those eligible to receive health care at military and Public Health Service hospitals and clinics.

The main purpose of the program is to improve management and administration within the military medical care system and eliminate waste and fraud.

DEERS registration was held at Keesler during the last three months of 1980.

Now that the system is completely on-line, the medical center will begin checking eligibility through the system.

This will be accomplished at one of three areas of the medical center: admissions and disposition, pharmacy and outpatient records.

Plans also call for the dental clinic to begin eligibility checking in the near future.

What happens if the computer says an individual isn't eligible for medical care? Generally, when that happens it means that there was a glitch when the information was put into the system, the individual has not registered, or their eligibility has expired.

If this occurs, the individuals will be referred to the customer service office at the Sablich Center for any problems to be corrected.

Active duty and retired service members are enrolled automatically based on service records.

However, it is the responsibility of the sponsor to enroll a spouse, children and other family members eligible to receive medical care.

Society completes 20 years preserving sight

This year the Mississippi Society to Prevent Blindness is celebrating the 20th Anniversary of its founding. The Society began in 1961 through the efforts of the Capitol B & PW Club of Jackson.

These ladies saw the need for services to prevent blindness and asked the National Society to Prevent Blindness for guidance and acceptance into its nationally recognized organization. Today MSPB services reach every area of Mississippi.

Because Mississippi leads the nation in blindness and new cases of blindness, there is great need for the services and information provided by MSPB.

Seven hundred citizens of the state lose their vision each year—half of them needlessly because half of all blindness can be prevented. It is that half of the grim statistics that the Society strives to eliminate.

Initial programs were in preschool vision screening of children.

Volunteers from Telephone Pioneers of America, Jewish Women's organizations, Delta Gamma Alumnae, Jayettes, PTAs and Junior Auxiliaries over the state were trained by the Society to go into their communities to screen youngsters.

Screening programs have continued and expanded so that more than 10,000 children now receive free vision screening through MSPB every year. Glaucoma screening of adults followed the chartering of MSPB in 1967. At first testing was done ophthalmologists with a Schiotz tonometer. Since 1979 screening has been done with a non-contact tonometer that can be operated by trained volunteers.

This innovation has allowed screening to be held at many more sites. In only 10 months, 8,000 persons received free screening.

As a result, many have been found to have unsuspected glaucoma. With early discovery they will be able to save their sight and halt the progress of this insidious disease.

An estimated 19,000 Mississippians have glaucoma and half don't know it. Left untreated the condition will lead to permanent blindness.

Vision screenings are only two of the major services offered to Mississippians by the Mississippi Society in the last 20 years.

Others include public and professional education, and safety promotion in schools and industries.

MSPB, a non-profit, voluntary health agency supported solely by public contributions, is an affiliate of the National Society to Prevent Blindness.

Theft..... CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1A

Rt. 3, Box 534, Bay St. Louis was arrested Friday for allegedly stealing numerous life jackets, boat motors and two boat water pumps from boats being held by customs at Port Beville for drug violations.

Peterson said, "Myself, Investigator Delbert Seay, a special agent from customs of Mobile and a customs patrol officer's two day investigation led to the arrest of Colley, who worked as a security guard when the items were allegedly taken."

Colley was lodged in the Hancock jail and is charged with grand larceny in lieu of a $5,000 bond according to Peterson.

A preliminary hearing for Colley has been set for May 27 before Justice Court Judge Lee Klein.

Some of the items were recovered from a local cash and carry firm in Waveland according to the sheriff.

US Customs keep confiscated boats at the harbor in Port Beville and have unloaded numerous tons of marijuana captured at sea in recent months at the facility.

Peterson said Colley had worked for the firm, of Shultz and Associates Security Service, Gulfport.

and Bay St. Louis provided the posts," Rappold stated.

Waveland attached its sign to the back of Bay St. Louis' boundary marker.

Alderman Louie Smolensky said several 35-mile-per-hour speed limit signs were altered with spray paint to read 85 m.p.h.

Lucien Gex, city attorney and judge, noted that persons apprehended for damaging city property face malicious mischief charges which carry a maximum six month jail sentence and $500 fine.

The approved ordinance states:

—A reward of up to $100 is offered to each person providing information leading to the arrest and conviction of persons damaging or stealing city property;

—Payment shall be issued "at the discretion of the mayor and aldermen";

—The ordinance may be terminated by a majority vote by the aldermen.

In other business at the 7:30 p.m. regular bi-monthly meeting at City Hall, the aldermen; —Authorized removing Kenneth McKenna's property from the 1980 tax roles. Rappold said to be listed on the roles a home had to be completed by Jan. 1, 1980 and McKenna had not completed building his home until April, 1980;

—Authorized returning Charles Wood's property because he had paid $269 in delinquent taxes;

—Discussed a proposed project to repair Waveland Avenue, a portion of Beach Boulevard at the end of the avenue and the Garfield Lader Memorial Pier in a cooperative effort with American Legion Post No. 77;

—Reviewed two bids for sewer system hardware, but Rappold would not state who submitted the bids;

—Reviewed city fencing regulations. Longo said a woman asked if she could construct a six-foot high solid wood fence around her back yard swimming pool. Rappold said the fence could be constructed in that area;

—Heard a report from Rappold that five Middletown Housing Rehabilitation Project homes will be offered for contractor's bids and bid proposals for three structures are being considered by the project manager;

—Received an invitation to Waveland Civic Association's officer installation which was Saturday night.

type of resolution to the supervisors resulted in the supervisors not agreeing to pass the millage and stalled the program.

Board member Louie Ladner said he hopes classroom construction will begin at the start of the next school year.

Board members agreed there will be no serious housing problems associated with the delay. However, they noted a possible exception might exist at Gulfview Elementary School.

Sills said he will be presenting statistics to the board in the near future concerning the numbers of students expected to be enrolled in the county school system during the 1981-82 school year.

In other business, the board directed Sills to contact board attorney Joseph Gex so Gex can certify that is acres of land now being leased by the school board is not owned by the school district.

Board member Woodrow Ladner said families living on the land located in the Bienville, Lee Town area of Hancock County have brought their problem to his attention recently.

Board members said they had known about the problem for three years and requested Gex to certify that the county does not own the land.

Terry Randolph, 16th section land manager, said the land was initially bought by a man named Kilgore in 1947.

Randolph said the man never paid taxes on the land and could not be located.

He said Kilgore purchased the land from Holmes County.

The manager said the school board started leasing the land sometime in the fifties.

He said he discovered the school board did not own the land three years ago.

Randolph said a possibility exists that the board can acquire the land through the courts by claiming "adverse possession."

He noted the occupants of the land might also attempt to acquire the land in the same manner.

He stated the board must first be certain that they do not own the land, and stated that could only be determined by Gex's certification.

Also during the Saturday meeting at the school district's office on Court Street in Bay St. Louis, the board:

—Approved the resignation of three teachers at Hancock North Central Elementary School. They are: Linda A. Emmel, Elizabeth S. Williams and Catherine B. Wiederhold. Board members noted they are parting with the teachers with "deep regret" and stated the teachers are leaving because their husbands jobs have forced them to relocate.

Approved school board members and Sills to attend a School Board Association Conference in Nashville, July 15-19.

Approved joining the Mississippi School Board's Association. Sills noted the board has joined in the past

Afternoon ceremony unites Phelps, Burton

Cynthia Joy Burton became the bride of James Phelps in a 2 p.m. garden ceremony on April 11 in the Waveland home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Lindley.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Phelps of Waveland.

Justice Court Judge Bruce Necaie performed the double ring ceremony before a brass bridal arch decorated with yellow chrysanthemums, Easter lilies and ivy.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of cream colored satin overlaid with cream chiffon. Deep flounces of cream colored lace adorned the v-neckline, long sleeves and hemline. She carried a bouquet of yellow rosebuds and baby's breath with cream colored lace streamers.

Only Fayard of Bay St. Louis attended the bride as maid of honor. She wore a floral gown of sheer yellow knit with solid yellow ruffle at the neckline, and carried a single stemmed yellow rose with matching ribbon streamers.

Randy Shaparro of Baton Rouge, La. served as best man.

The mother of the bride was attired in a blue gown of sheer knit accented with lace. The groom's mother chose for the occasion a sheer pink two piece dress.

A reception followed at the bride's parents' home.

The bride's table was covered with a yellow cloth and overlaid with a handmade cream lace cover. It held a three tiered wedding cake trimmed with yellow roses, and swans, topped with wedding bells.

Assisting at the reception were Paula Carre' of Bay St. Louis and Mrs. Carolyn Sisson and Mrs. Mona Herrington of Louisville, Miss., aunts of the bride.

The couple will reside in Mariner Village Apartments, Kenner, La.

Out-of-town guests included grandmother of the bride, Mrs. Irene Rogers of Louisville, Miss.; grandmother of the groom, Mrs. Thelma A. Hartenstein of New Orleans; Mr. and Mrs. James Hartenstein of Baton Rouge, La.; Mr. and Mrs. John Schaparro, Tony Wilson, Cindy Shaparro, Johnny Shaparro, all of New Orleans; Mrs. Carolyn Sisson and Angie, Jenny and Casey and Mrs. Mona Herrington, Stevie and Amy, all of Louisville; Mr. and Mrs. Carlyle Rogers and children of Pascagoula, Miss.

Harrison-Hancock member takes statewide award

Patsy Bishop of the Harrison-Hancock Legal Secretaries Association was chosen Legal Secretary of the Year by the Mississippi Association of Legal Secretaries at its recent annual convention in Jackson. She has been employed by the firm of Palmer and Gaines, Gulfport, since 1970. She has served the state association as president for two terms, treasurer, executive secretary, national director, parliamentary professional legal secretaries chairman and is beginning her second term as editor of the state publication.

Locally she has served as president for two terms, treasurer, NAIS representative and governor and has held numerous appointive chairmanships. She was co-chairman for publication of the Legal Secretaries' Handbook released in 1977 and used by secretaries and young lawyers throughout the state as a guide and aid.

Bishop is a native of Long Beach where she resides with her husband, Floyd, and her daughters, Lisa and Linda.

She is a member of the Long Beach Carnival Association, the Knights of Columbus Auxiliary and St. Thomas Parish Council.

She has served as secretary to the latter two organizations. The Legal Secretary of the Year award is made annually to a member of the State Association on the basis of outstanding secretarial ability, service to the national, state and local associations and for charitable, civic and church activities.

Brief

FEMALE ARTISTS

The achievements of female artists, from the Renaissance to the 20th century, are documented in a new hour-long film, "The Artist Was a Woman," to be telecast at 9 p.m. Monday, May 25, on the Mississippi ETV Network.

The narration, read by Jane Alexander, blends quotations from the letters and diaries of the women with comments by some of their contemporary critics and admirers. The music, composed by women, reflects the style of each period. Included are interviews with Ann Sutherland Harris and Linda Nochlin, guest curators of the exhibition and consultants for the film, and with Germaine Greer, whose recent book, "The Obstacle Race," analyzes the social and psychological barriers faced in the past by women artists. "The Artist Was a Woman" was directed and co-produced by Suzanne Bauman, an award-winning filmmaker whose recent film, "A Cuban Odyssey," can be seen on "World" at 8 p.m. Wednesday, May 27, on the Mississippi ETV Network.

Mormons and South America subject of Cheesman lecture

Paul Cheesman, Mission President of the Louisiana-Baton Rouge Mission of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, will present a lecture at the church's Waveland Chapel Sunday, May 31 at 7 p.m.

The Louisiana-Baton Rouge Mission includes parts of Mississippi, Louisiana, and the Gulf Coast extending to the Mobile, Alabama area. Cheesman served three years as a volunteer supervisor at Brigham Young University, completed a tour of duty as a chaplain in the U.S. Navy, was a corporation president in Miami, Fla., and is a world traveler, author and lecturer.

He is best known as an authority on archaeology and ancient history of Latin America, has written five books on this subject.

His presentation here will deal with the relationship between ancient South American cultures and Scripture.

The public is invited to attend his presentation at Waveland LDS Ward Chapel on McLaurin and Nicholson Avenue.

There will be no admission charge or request for donations.

Catholic Foundation establishes trust

A Special Occasion Gifts Trust has been established within the Catholic Foundation of the Diocese of Biloxi for the benefit of Mercy Cross High School, according to Bishop Joseph L. Howze, president of the foundation. Individuals may commemorate happy events in their lives, such as the birth of a child, grandchild, birthdays, graduations, wedding anniversaries, etc. by making a contribution to this trust.

All gifts are considered perpetual since the amount of the original gift will never be spent. Only the interest earned by a gift will be used to provide scholarship aid to deserving students attending Mercy Cross.

Checks should be made payable to the Catholic Foundation-Diocese of Biloxi and forwarded to P.O. Box 1189, Biloxi, MS 39533.

All contributions are tax deductible.

Widowed group installs

The monthly meeting of "A New Life," a support group for widowed persons, sponsored by Catholic Social Services, was held Tuesday, May 12 at St. James School in Gulfport.

The group observed its first anniversary.

New officers for the coming year installed are Mary Simmons of Biloxi, president; Rose Anne Hagel of Ocean Springs, vice president; and Ida Chalmers of Gulfport, secretary-treasurer.

The next meeting of "A New Life" will be Tuesday, June 9 at 7:30 p.m. in St. James School.

There's an Answer!

Scared to death
Q. Several relatives have died recently, and now I'm scared to death of dying.

When I think of death, especially at night, the nerves from my head all through my body start burning.

The Devil is trying to get me down. I am 66 years old, and I know my time is coming soon. We live out where it's hard to find things to do.

Sometimes I visit the sick, but nearly every week there is a funeral for someone I know. Please tell me how to have more faith.

A. You seem to be developing a fixation on death. To put a stop to this, start rejoicing every day that you are alive. Practice visualizing yourself as living to a great age and in good health all the way.

Don't think of 66 as old, for it isn't. Plan ahead for some exciting experience like a trip or visits from family or friends. Your life will take on new vigor.

We are sending you the pamphlet The Healing of Mind and Soul in the 23rd Psalm which has helped others change their thinking and gain new faith. Anyone wishing a free copy may write to us at Box 500, Pawling, N.Y. 12564. Loves shy girl

Q. I am 19 years old and have dated only a few girls. The last girl I dated is the only girl that I love this way.

She is 17 and real shy. I don't mind her shyness because that shows me she's different from other girls.

by Norman Vincent Peale

During a serious talk at her house one night she told me she isn't ready to start dating. She said she has a friend who has been interested in me for almost a year. But I don't want to date her! I feel she just doesn't want to hurt her friendship with this other girl.

How can I deal with her shyness and the interfering friend?

A. Just keep on being nice to her and let her know she is the girl for you, if you feel that she is. Then be patient. She is a sensible girl, and you should not urge her to start dating until she is ready.

Is it a disgrace?
Q. I am a 73 year old widow, and all was well until a family moved next door.

She calls me a whore and other evil names whenever a man comes here.

Another neighbor said I didn't love my deceased husband if I remarried.

Please comment. I am very sad about this.

A. Your neighbor is apparently a sick woman, or at least an unhappy one. No rational person would act as you say she does.

The best strategy is to send kindly thoughts in her direction and if you can figure out a way to do something for her, give that a try. Such love strategy has been known to break down the most implacable spirit.

In the meantime, quietly enjoy your friends. And if an interested, eligible and good man comes along, of course, marry him.

SEMINARY GRAD—Richard A. Bradley was among more than 200 persons who graduated at the New Orleans Baptist Theological Seminary May 16. A native of Waveland, Bradley received the master of divinity degree. He is the son of Mrs. Martha Bradley of Metairie, La. and the late Mr. W.A. Bradley. He is married to the former Brenda Diane Johnson.

Pulpit Points

BY DR. L.S. WALKER

The young people of America are her greatest resource.

Thousands of these young men and women will be graduating from high schools and colleges this month all across this great land.

Some will be making plans to further their education, while other thousands will be stepping out into the job market where they will find competition keen, cold and demanding.

To all of these we offer our sincere congratulations for what they have achieved in reaching this goal.

It has been a long, hard road. They have done well. Now our hope and prayer is that God may richly bless each of them as they continue their journey in pursuit of other goals ahead.

The road you travel in this life, young man and young woman, is always into the future. Along this road are many pitfalls to avoid, stumbling stones to elude, snares to escape, rugged mountains to climb, and blind corners to turn.

These will include corners of choice as a vocation in life, choice of matrimony, and a choice of where you will be in eternity—what you will do with the Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ; there will also be some unexpected corners as unplanned failures, and other common disappointments, and some inevitable corners as old age, death, separation from loved ones, the coming of the Lord, and the accounting of our stewardship in judgment.

Along this long winding road which you must travel will be many experiences of which you are not yet acquainted; there will be the good and the bad; the pleasant and the unpleasant; the joyful and disappointing; the sweet and the bitter.

Strive to make sure that you are not spoiled by the good, the pleasant, the joyful and the sweet; and that you are not embittered by the bad, the unpleasant, the disappointing and the bitter.

Try to keep in mind that the world will be made better or worse because you have passed this way. To be born a lady or a gentleman may be an accident, but to die one is an achievement.

It takes a lot of grace, grit and faith in God to be somebody worthwhile.

No effort is necessary to drift with the prevailing tide and current and wind up as dead wood in a drift heap somewhere.

The experiences along the way are largely responsible for shaping our attitudes, and attitudes have much to do with the quality of life we live. These attitudes largely determine our actions, and most especially, our reactions.

The learning experience in our lives should forever continue.

Character and success will be determined in a great measure by what we feed our minds.

This demands that we read good books.

This should always include a diligent study of the Bible, God's Word, the wisdom of the ages.

No one can correctly claim to be well educated who is ignorant of the inspired scriptures found in the Book of books—the Holy Bible.

Moral and spiritual ignorance is the most blinding kind. Our Lord said, "Search the scriptures; for in them ye shall have eternal life; and they are they which testify of me."—John 5:39.

The journey we travel through this world is a series of tests of human strength.

One may be made stronger by the tests, or weaker, depending on how he reacts to them.

As the apostle Paul wrote, "We are as clay, and we are shaped by the potter."—Romans 9:21.

Strength and character are developed under a disciplining hand. The apostle Paul reminded us in the second epistle to "Arise and walk in the journey of life."—2 Peter 1:13.

Strength for the journey was found for him in that which the Lord had provided.

The apostle Paul wrote to the church at Corinth: "Not that we are sufficient of ourselves...but our sufficiency is of God."—II Cor. 3:5.

"Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God."—Matt. 4:4.

They that are wise will want to walk with the Lord, for in doing so they can be sure of the very best companionship, and a safe arrival.

In a world of such great darkness, Christ is the Light of life. For he said, "I am the light of the world: he that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life."—John 8:12.

"The steps of a good man are ordered by the Lord, and he delighteth in his way," declared the Psalmist. "Though he fall, he shall not be utterly cast down: for the Lord upholdeth him with his hand. I have been young, and now am old; yet have I not seen the righteous forsaken, nor his seed begging bread."—Ps. 37:23-25.

"Fear not to be bold and creative; search out new things and new ways, there is lots in life to be discovered, developed, utilized and enjoyed; but do not fear to utilize the old tried and proven ways."

"Thus saith the Lord, Stand ye in the ways, and see, and ask for the old paths, where is the good way, and walk therein, and ye shall find rest for your souls."—Jer. 6:16.

It is the height of folly to rebel against the righteous ways of God.

Finally, may I say: "Trust in the Lord with all thine heart; and lean not unto thine own understanding. In all thy ways acknowledge him, and he shall direct thy paths."—Prov. 3:5-6.

Another recognition ceremony honoring English as a second language students of Catholic Social Services' Refugee Resettlement Program was held recently at the Michel Community Education Center in Biloxi.

Reverend James Tran Manh Thang of the Vietnamese Apostolate delivered the invocation. Reverend John Noone, director of Catholic Social and Community Services, and Ron Chester, assistant director of community education, Biloxi, addressed the students and commended them on their "participation and hard work."

The Keesler Air Force Base Chorus, under direction of Captain Ed Truett, provided entertainment. Refreshments were served.

Another recognition ceremony will be held soon in Pass Christian, honoring the students in that area, according to Jane O'Brien, refugee program coordinator.

DRUG QUIZ
by Curt Scarborough, Ph.D.

Question—How quickly may a teenager become an alcoholic?

a) 6 months
b) 5 years
c) 10 years
d) 15 years

Answer—Dr. Stephanie Brown, associate director of the Alcohol Clinic at Stanford University Medical Center, says that alcoholism in adolescents develops rapidly, with some teenagers becoming alcoholics within six months of taking their first drink. She attributes the increasing incidence of teenage problem drinking and alcoholism to the fact that alcohol is easier to obtain than hard drugs and is more acceptable both socially and legally. In fact, the latest report shows that 19% of high school students get drunk at least once a month.

Correction: a)

For further information about alcohol and drug abuse write Christian Action Commission, P.O. Box 530, Jackson, MS 39206.

Gone But Not Forgotten

Gone—but not forgotten. Not will he ever be; the Lord who came to earth from heaven to save sinners like you and me.

He spent a short time upon the earth, yet gave it such a wonderful rebirth. They called him to a cruel cross. Though his life on earth was never less.

They bound him and they laid him to a tomb so big and dim; they rolled a huge stone against the door. They thought he was dead for evermore.

The grave clothes could not hold him. They found the tomb so dim; they rolled the stone away. He was not there, but on that day.

He lives no longer with the Father, who gave him life to save us all. He came again to take us home. The one He's preparing now—recall!

The Spinal Column
BY WILLIAM L. POWELL, D.C.
Low Back and Hip Pain
Many times throughout the year, a patient with low back or leg pain comes to the office with a diagnosis of "strain" or "sprain" already made. Generally heat, braces, medications, and traction have already been applied without giving any lasting relief. Our continued success in treating these cases stems mostly from our careful evaluation of any pelvic misalignments and of course, proper treatment (since the true problem is identified).
Falls and accidents can easily influence the pelvis and often if symptoms arise following an accident, proper examination and treatment may well avoid present and future problems.
